The Arrival of Commodore Rodgers' Squadron at Valparaiso. The safe arrival of Commodore Rodgers with his squadron at the iron-turreted monitor Monadnock at Valparaiso, is an era in naval history.

It was considered a hazardous experiment, but its complete success has fully justified the Department, and reflects great credit on all concerned in the successful issue.

The Monadnock has excited the most profound attention at all the ports where the squadron stopped to coal, and nowhere more so than at Valparaiso, where a strong foreign naval force of thirteen iron-clads was collected...

The Bonds are for sale at par, and an amount of stock equal to the amount of the Bond will be given to the purchaser without cost.

Business men are invited to call at the Office of the Company and see the various specimens of its ore, with certificates of its value, and get any information desired.
